Council Studies $7 Million Budget Page by Page of Five-Year Plan

by Leta Mach

In this golden anniversary year for Greenbelt, City Manager James K. Giese celebrated a silver anniversary in presenting his 25th budget to city council with his proposal for fiscal year 1987-88. The budget public hearing, held on Wednesday, May 27, followed much the same format as those in previous years with the manager reviewing the proposal page by page and council asking questions and receiving comments from the audience.

A significant addition to the budget was the projection of expenditures and revenues in every account for a five-year period. While Giese explained that this entailed considerable work, city staff felt the exercise was a good idea. As Giese noted in his budget message to council, "The budget is as much a planning document as it is a financial document. It identifies not only what funds are required for the coming fiscal year but to what purposes they are to be expended and what objectives are expected to be achieved."

The budget was balanced only for 1987-88, not for all the remaining projected years. The $7.2 million proposed budget is substantially more than last year's $6.1 million budget, yet there is no increase in the property tax rate. Revenues are up by 12 percent.

Giese explained that the budget proposed no significant changes in city services other than possible changes in waste collection procedures. It is proposed that the city trash crew would no longer collect newspapers and that special trash would be collected by the regular trash collection crew. Special trash would be reserved for just the few items too bulky to fit in the regular trash truck. A private company might collect newspapers at no cost or revenue to the city. Residents would be required to bundle papers and place them at the curb.

Comments

The review of the budget elicited no citizen comments until just prior to the miscellaneous category when recreation programs were discussed. A corrected list was presented of contributions requested by Greenbelt organizations. Numerous people spoke in support of the Greenbelt Arts Center's (GAC) request for $34,000. John Ward, president, felt it was "important that the city support the arts here in the center to help preserve the original concept of the center for all citizens." He explained that $30,000 would be used for renovations to the theater.

Konrad Herling explained that the grant would help GAC expand its offerings and enhance its appearance. The group presented petitions in support of GAC—231 signatures of residents and 280 signatures of non-residents. Trix Whitehall talked about the arts center's service to people, which included all groups. The importance of the arts in attracting business and the importance of the theater in keeping Roosevelt Center flourishing were other reasons given for supporting the request.

Linda Martin noted the approximately $140,000 increase in revenues from admissions and amusement taxes in 1986 and suggested that some of this money be used for the arts center. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld noted that normally a particular source of revenue was not earmarked for any particular project; however, he did understand her reasoning given that some of these taxes came from theaters.

Keith Chernikoff spoke in support of another item—a special populations supervisor to coordinate programs for such groups as the physically handicapped and senior citizens. The budget proposes adding this position to the recreation department if council deems it desirable after reviewing a study on special populations which should be completed in the coming fiscal year.

Other items in the proposed budget were reviewed but did not receive specific citizen comment. Two records assistants and two communications specialists are proposed for the police department. The salary of a new inspecting engineer for road construction would be offset by road permit fees. Two additional people would be added to the refuse crew either to maintain the special trash program as it is or become a new roadside trash crew. The increase in waste collection salaries would be covered by increased waste collection fees to $114 per year and an increased rebate from county landfill fees.

Instead of additional positions in the Public Works Department, the budget proposes the employment of eight seasonal workers. To recognize their efforts, the manager proposes making the part-time animal wardens classified employees so that they will be eligible for benefits. A full-time transit operator is proposed and the city dial-a-ride service would expand to six days a week.

Several items illustrated the new concept of five-year projections. The swimming pool budget is projected to decrease in 1988-89 due to renovation of the outdoor pool and a resultant drop in operating costs. Thereafter, the expenses increase based on the predicted opening of the indoor pool and the expenses of

by Mary Lou Williamson

The city council will meet Tuesday, June 9, at 8 p.m. in the council chambers to approve the budget for the coming year. If council follows the tentative decisions made at the final budget work session on June 1, it will make only a few minor changes in the city manager's proposed budget of $7.2 million. Council was eager, however, to lower the tax rate, probably by two cents, to $1.17 per $100 of assessed valuation.

The budget can be balanced by using funds from the surplus remaining from previous years' revenues that were unspent.

Additional expenditures that council will likely make include an increase in the pay raise for city employees from two percent to three percent, a change recommended by City Manager James K. Giese. The additional percent will cost $29,900. Council member Ed Putens asked for $1,500 to pay for a series of "city update" ads to appear quarterly in this newspaper. Perhaps the most significant change came on a three to two straw vote. The Greenbelt Arts Center will receive $10,000 from the city through its program of grants to organizations. The proposal initiated by Council Member Toni Bram, joined by Joe Isaacs and then Ed Putens, sets forth an increased commitment to the arts center's Utopia Theater, but with strings attached. Council will add another $10,000 for new playground equipment, doubling what was in the budget at the recommendation of the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board. Giese advised council that there is still about $14,000 in the federal revenue sharing account left over from this year. The funds would be spent for computer equipment.

Straw votes for cuts were few and far between. Proposal for a third trailer for the administrative staff will probably not be needed now, saving half of the expected $5,000 expense. The remaining amount would be used to renovate or rearrange office space to make room for two additional employees.

Council member Tom White's effort to knock out $2,500 for a city float for the Labor Day Parade failed for lack of support. So did the efforts of Bram and Isaacs, joined briefly by White, to delete one or two new squad cars from the police budget. After much discussion, the council supported the city manager's recommendation for five police replacement cars, with no change in the budget. Council did eliminate the police department's request to keep two of the oldest cars in order to expand the fleet.

CELEBRATE GREENBELT DAY

by Steve Galanis

This year's Greenbelt Day Weekend will be the biggest ever in celebration of the city's fiftieth anniversary. Music, art, sports, exhibits, and special ceremonies will all be a part of the long-awaited festivities.

As in the past, avid runners will be allowed to compete in races around Greenbelt Lake. Sponsored by the Greenbelt Running Club, the races will be held between 9 and 10 a.m. on Saturday morning, and participants may sign up a half hour before each race.

This year, the chance for all to demonstrate the competitive spirit is captured in the events planned between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Saturday at the municipal swimming pool, the Youth Center, and Braden Field. Softball games, swimming contests, and tense tug-o-war matches will be held, along with other old favorites such as the three-legged race, musical chairs, and egg toss.

For those who prefer to watch artists and craftsmen at work, the Fifth Annual Arts and Crafts Fair and demonstrations by the Blacksmiths' Guild of the Potomac promises to be entertaining. Both the blacksmith and Arts Center demonstrations will be held between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Saturday at the Roosevelt Center Mall (The blacksmith activities will also be held Sunday between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Hand-made iron-works will once again be auctioned).

Sharing in this year's special celebration will be the Goddard Space Flight Center. An open house featuring exhibits, films, and tours will be held at the Goddard Visitors Center from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. Easy access to the Center will be provided through a free shuttle bus service at the Candy Cane City playground area, across the parking lot from the post office. The shuttle service will run from 1030 to 4:30.

Also planned this year is a Greenbelt Group Portrait. Everyone who works or lives in Greenbelt is invited to come to Braden Field at 12 noon on Sunday for a mass portrait.

Group Shot Brings A High Adventure

by Bill Cornett

There are probably very few square yards of Braden Field that I have not set foot on throughout my life in Greenbelt. But Monday I went to a place at Braden Field that I had never been before.

This trip was a checkout run for the Greenbelt Group Portrait scheduled to be taken at noon on Saturday, June 6. All Greenbelt residents and any group or organization who would like to be included are encouraged to come. Banners of any sort are welcome. WJLA-TV Channel 7 has been invited and ABC has asked them to tape the event for Good Morning America.

A city employee brought a van with a cherry picker on it. I climbed into the bucket and strapped two cameras around my body. Then I clipped on the safety belt. I would need it. My final destination was a tiny platform at the top of the light pole at the softball field.

Sweating, loaded down with equipment, I worked the controls of the bucket, raising myself higher and higher. "What's it like up there?" I called to the city employee. "Don't know," he said, "I haven't been up on one of these poles yet."

I got into range of the platform and tried to open the trap door. It was heavy and rusted. While hanging on for dear life forty feet above the ground, with my nose crunched up against a light reflector the size of a golf umbrella and about $2,000 worth of camera equipment clanging on my back, I wondered how I got myself into such mess.

Finally, I made it. I am happy to report that the platform is a lot bigger than it looks from the ground.

The picture should come out nicely. A large print of the result will be donated to the city. Copies will be available through the 50th Anniversary Committee.

First-day Covers on Sale For Fiftieth Anniversary

The 50th Anniversary Committee has produced a first-day cover (envelope) commemorating the 50th anniversary of the issuance of Greenbelt's charter on June 1, 1937. The charter created the first council-manager form of government in the state of Maryland.

The cover is an envelope with an historic photograph of Greenbelt and a short paragraph noting the significance of the day. The cover is stamped and run through the cancellation machine on June 1, 1987. The machine has the commemorative 50th anniversary postmark.

Each cover is a collector's item as only a limited number are ever printed. They will be available to purchase on Greenbelt Day week-end in the Roosevelt Center Mall area.

The 50th Anniversary Committee is indebted to John Webster of the NASA Stamp Club for his interest and help with this project.

FUTURE CLOUDED

To the Editor:

The Greenbelt News Review of May 28, 1987, carried an ad on page 13 from Realty 1 which announced the availability of "Commercial Retail Space" in the "Roosevelt Center Mall" with "3 spaces to be available—2500 to 7000 sq. ft."

The Arts Center has learned that one of the "spaces" available is the Utopia Theater. The other spaces appear to be the area formerly occupied by Ben Franklin and the area currently occupied by High's.

This announcement places the future of the Roosevelt Center before the public. The owner of Roosevelt Mall has no coherent plan for the future of the commercial center of Old Greenbelt. Further, the owner will rent to the highest bidder regardless of the needs of the citizens of Greenbelt. If the citizens of Greenbelt want to maintain the Roosevelt Mall as a commercial center catering to our city and if we want to keep a healthy arts program in the center of the city, then the citizens must act to prevent the owner from selling all of us out. Although the owner has announced the availability of these spaces, the city can act to prevent the destruction of the Arts Center and the city can act to preserve and improve the quality of the Roosevelt Mall as a center of life in Greenbelt.

The citizens of Greenbelt must make their opinions known to the city council if we are to prevent the destruction of Roosevelt Mall and the Arts Center as we know them. We urge all citizens to write or call the members of the city council—Gil Weidenfeld, the Mayor; Tom White, the Mayor Pro Tem; and council members Toni Bram, Ed Putens, and Joe Isaacs. The members of the city council may be reached at 25 Crescent Road, Greenbelt, Md. 20770.

Council Hires Financial Advisor; Considers Limiting Parking Near Lake

by Diane Oberg

At its regular meeting of May 26, the Greenbelt City Council considered a variety of legislation at the city, county and state levels. It also approved the hiring of a financial advisor for the bond issue.

Lake Parking

Under an ordinance introduced for first reading, parking along streets in Boxwood Village would be limited to 30 minutes between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays between April 1 and June 30 of each year. Cars displaying a city permit would be exempt from these restrictions. Permits will be issued to residents of Boxwood Village, for their own use and that of their guests.

This ordinance follows discussions between the council and the Boxwood Civic Association, in which the residents requested relief from parking problems caused by visitors to Attick Park. The restrictions would apply to Rosewood Drive between Lynbrook Court and Lastner Lane, to lower Lastner Lane and Ivy Lane.

A public hearing will be held at the start of the next council meeting, on June 8, with final action scheduled for later in that same meeting.

Financial Advisor

Council took the first step toward issuing the bonds authorized in May 1985, by approving the hiring of a financial advisor to handle the bond sale. According to the written comments of City Manager James K. Giese, the financial advisor will be responsible for advising on bond market conditions, assisting in obtaining favorable ratings from bond rating organizations and assisting in taking competitive bids for the sale of the bonds.

By a unanimous vote, council approved Giese's recommendation of Alex Brown and Sons. One of the three bidders had no experience in issuing municipal bonds. While the other bidder was thought well qualified, and submitted a lower bid, Giese based his recommendation on the city's experience with Alex Brown and Sons and on "their recognition as one of the major bond houses in the country."

County Legislation

County Council Member Richard Castaldi appeared before council to urge its support for CB-30. This county bill was introduced by Castaldi, in response to comments from Greenbelt's city council. It provides for a postponement of the review of zoning map amendment applications from the time the Planning Board adopts a master plan until its final adoption by the District Council. The purpose of the bill is to give adequate time for master plan review, without the issuance of zoning changes contrary to the new plan.

County Council Member Anthony Cicoria has introduced an alternate bill, CB-59, which Castaldi described as undermining his bill. Under Cicoria's bill, there would be no delay in deciding existing zoning applications, but instead a freeze on filing new applications.

A hearing on both bills is scheduled for June 9. The city council unanimously voted to support CB-30 and to oppose CB-59.

Legislative Proposals

Council unanimously agreed to present several legislative proposals to the Maryland Municipal League. Among the proposals were three already presented to State Senator Leo Green and the delegates representing Greenbelt. The first of these is state legislation permitting the state to pay the outstanding debt on surplus school land converted to other public use. (If passed this would enable the city to acquire the 72 acres near Northway Fields without cost.) Another would prohibit vendors on state highways, while the third would provide matching state grant funds for the conversion of surplus schools for social service uses other than senior citizen centers. (Funding for conversion to senior citizen centers is already available.)

A new proposal calls for municipal exemption from the county's energy tax. The state law authorizing Prince Georges County to levy an energy tax did not specifically exempt municipalities from the tax. Castaldi explained that the county's legal advisers say that since the state legislation contained no exemptions, the county could not legally make any exceptions to the tax.

Giese said that he was concerned about the county's having the authority to tax municipalities. He said the cities have never before been taxed by the county and that it is traditional that one level of government not tax any other level.

While Giese reported that county executive Parris Glendening had proposed some form of rebate, Castaldi said that this would be a "tough fight" due to opposition from county council members who do not have strong municipal support. He also warned that the proceeds from the tax had been specifically designated for education, so that he doubted that the tax would be allowed to expire at the end of the two-year period authorized.

Board Reappointments

Dial Silvers, Joseph Greig and Larry Noel were reappointed to the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board. PRAB member Ray McCawley, whose term is also expiring, asked not to be reappointed.

Meetings

Council scheduled a special meeting for June 29 for final action on the bond issue priorities and for any budget adjustments required to close out the 1986-87 fiscal year.

Council Tidbits

At the May 11 meeting, council: —Agreed with the Advisory Planning Board report No. 87-14 recommending the board concentrate on five specific concerns for the coming year. APB expressed concern that both the city and its planning board too frequently have been "reactive" to issues.

—Approved the changes in the facade design for the new Police building and the parking lot scheme. The State has agreed to allow access to north-bound Kenilworth Avenue for police use only.

—Approved hiring of Francis D. Lethbridge Associates as architects for drawing up the renovation plans for Roosevelt Center under the guidance of Coffin and Coffin for $15,000. The latter firm is developing a Master Plan for the Center.

—Approved employment of Terese Van Hooten, DSW, Social Research Consultant to undertake a needs assessment study of special population groups in Greenbelt for $8,900.

—Approved purchase of a refuse truck (load packer) from Chesapeake Ford of Baltimore for $67,000.

BUDGET HEARING

operating two pools. While only minimal maintenance is budgeted for the North End Center in 1987-88, future years show an increased budget due to the total renovation of the entire building. However, the budget comments that this may not be valid because no decision about the former school has been made. The budget for the Greenbelt Museum decreases over five years as the cost of acquiring the home is repaid.

Revenues

Total revenue shows an increase of $701,500 or 12 percent. There is a substantial increase in taxes from new growth and development, particularly commercial offices. The property tax rate remains at $1.19 per $100 of assessed valuation. However, this is above the constant yield tax rate as determined by the state. The constant yield tax rate is that rate which would yield the same amount of money as the previous year in view of increased assessments. The state has decided that the constant yield tax rate is $1.12 per $100 assessed valuation.

Leonie Penney felt the tax rate was irrelevant. "The only real thing of any importance is the actual amount of money that is being spent." In a recapitulation for the News Review, she noted that the assessment for her house in the last year had gone up 3.71 percent. She suggested that the actual taxes remain unchanged by reducing the tax rate to $1.15. While most people came to council to ask for money, she noted that "I have been coming here steadfastly to ask for less."

On the other hand, Al Herling felt the growth in city services such as increased police protection and public works efforts had to be recognized. Stating that she didn't want the city to be penny-wise and pound-foolish, Judy Goldstein wondered which percentage of real property taxes came from residential and which from commercial properties. Giese replied that it was approaching 50/50 while it was once 95 percent residential. Council member Ed Putens stated that he would like to see a report on the percentage of taxes which different areas of the city paid.

Council thanked the citizens for presenting their views. Council member Joe Isaacs noted that he felt the budget was particularly significant because of the five-year projections. Weidenfeld concluded, "The budget is clearly one of the more important things city council does each year because it sets programs and policies."

The Greenbelt Vision in Retrospective

Review of "New Towns" Conference
by
Keith A. Winsell
(second in series)
"The City" (1939)

Through the documentary film "The City," first shown at the 1939 World's Fair in New York City, many Americans were introduced to Greenbelt as an alternative style of community living. This film was shown as part of the three-day conference on "New Towns" held this year at the Greenbelt Hilton, May 1-3.

It is still evaluated as an effective propaganda film. Following 25 minutes of harsh impressions of urban life in the industrial age, the viewer is transported for 20 minutes to the idyllic environment of the New Deal's first planned town, Greenbelt, Maryland. "It's here, the new city; here to serve a better age. The choice is yours."

Overlooking any possible advantages of living in large metropolitan areas, the production emphasizes the "wasted childhood," dreary housing, highway congestion and smoky skyline of places like Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. ("Smoke makes prosperity.") But in the scenes filmed in Greenbelt, the narrator tells the audience there is an atmosphere where the "public world (is) just as human as their homes. . . . The market is just an annex to the kitchen. . . . Here life comes first. The means of life comes second."

To those attending the conference the film was introduced by Dr. Howard Gillette of the American Studies program at George Washington University. Gillette, who specializes in the relationship between "theory" and filmmaking, wrote an article for the journal American Studies (Fall, 1977) about "The City." The article describes its similarity to other documentaries of the era, as well as the film's link to the scholarship of Lewis Mumford and Louis Wirth. Gillette was also responsible for the recently published annotated bibliography, Links in the Chain: Greenbelt, Maryland, and the New Town Movement in America.

Arnold on Greenbelt

Following the Saturday morning keynote address by Dr. William E. Leuchtenberg, who noted that a "dreadful civic consequence" of the Depression was that "local government was crumbling," historian Joseph Arnold of the University of Maryland-Baltimore County discussed "Greenbelt — Implementing the Vision." Arnold was introduced by prominent authority on Maryland history, George Callcott of the University of Maryland. Callcott referred to Arnold's 1971 book, The New Deal in the Suburbs, as the "fullest and finest examination" of the green towns experience. He also added that the promotion of Greenbelt should not be dismissed as mere "boosterism." "All of us at this conference know what a big deal Greenbelt really is. . . . one of mankind's grand experiments. . . . the world's most important experiment in community life."

Arnold continued in this celebratory spirit, but pointing out that a more "balanced critique" can be found in his book. He called Greenbelt "a product of 'the best and brightest' of a previous generation." He also commended Greenbelt Homes, Inc. for its "courageous step in refurbishing the original housing." Arnold's main theme, however, was to praise those "people who have made the world a better place to live." In addition to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, his wife Eleanor, "who kept him on the track," Rexford Tugwell and John S. Lansill, Arnold acknowledged the intellectual heritage of earlier community planners Ebenezer Howard, Lewis Mumford, Clarence Stein and Alexander Bing. Bing was responsible for "the city of the motor age," Radburn, New Jersey, founded in 1929. Until 1953 the community of Greenbelt generally had succeeded in resisting pressures to develop available land. Since then "it has won some battles" and lost others, he said. He described as a distressing fact on the national level today that there are too many "houses" and not enough "communities."

Metropolitan Growth

Respected scholar Jean Gottmann, who has conducted personal studies in many countries and authored the 1961 classic Megalopolis, observed that historians and city planners are too pessimistic. Now retired from Oxford University, he cheerfully joined the celebration in Greenbelt, pointing out "we are not only celebrating this town" but "the growth of 'new towns' in the Washington area" and commemorating the "new towns movement" in America.

Gottmann discussed the plan for an "academic new town," Tsukuba, Japan. Within its oval design are 46 distinct institutes.

Regarding his boyhood country of France, Gottmann traced a partial solution to Paris' problems with rapid growth from four to ten million people. Nearby communities of about 100,000 people have been created, he said, using a "large system" concept. Each is "self-contained and well-organized." Up to seven others, with populations between 300,000 and 500,000 are scheduled as a "realistic response to rapid urban growth."

Referring to late 19th-century efforts of Ebenezer Howard in England, Gottmann reflected that attempts to improve society have "inevitable political connotations." In the 20th Century Gottmann sees a movement away from the "isolation" of national capitals as more and more functions are centered there. He credits Greenbelt as being "one of the main roots" for unifying national government with other human services.

Gottmann had been introduced at the meeting by former architecture critic Frederick Gutheim, now associated with the American Civilization program at George Washington University. Gutheim observed the need for "federal interest in megalopolis."

Police Blotter

Based on Information
Released by the Greenbelt
Police Department

Greenbelt officers were involved Monday afternoon, May 25, in a high speed chase of a stolen car. Originating in northeast Washington and continuing along the Baltimore-Washington Parkway the car left the parkway at Greenbelt. With D.C., U.S. Park, Prince Georges County and Greenbelt police cooperating in the pursuit the stolen car was finally brought to a stop at Powder Mill Road and Research Road in Beltsville when it struck a Park Police cruiser. In the flight through Greenbelt the fleeing driver struck a car at Kenilworth Ave. and Crescent Rd. causing minor injuries to the occupants. Greenbelt officer Steve Keller arrested a 15-year-old male from Washington on charges of theft and assorted traffic offenses. He was held at Boys' Village, the county juvenile detention center at Cheltenham.

A large amount of property including cash and jewelry was stolen May 27 from a third floor apartment in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Terrace. The intruder(s) entered a common crawl space above the apartment through a hatch in the hallway, then broke through the plaster-board ceiling into the apartment.

Responding to a reported fight in progress about 4:30 p.m., May 23 in the 9000 block of Breeze-wood Terrace, Officer Alan Cahoon arrested two Greenbelt residents, ages 19 and 20, when he found the men were wanted by the Prince Georges County Sheriff's Department on outstanding arrest warrants for failing to appear in court on a variety of charges. They were turned over to the Sheriff's Department.

Investigating a complaint about 11:50 p.m. May 25 from a bicyclist of nearly being run down by a recklessly operated pickup truck, Officer Troy Harding arrested a 34-year-old non-resident in the 400 block of Ridge Road when he found a quantity of suspected PCP on the suspect, who was charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance (PCP) and released on personal recognizance.

Officer Tom Keifline arrested a 45-year-old Greenbelt resident about 4:25 a.m. May 26 at the 12 Court of Plateau Place. After stopping the man for a traffic violation the officer found that the Prince Georges County Sheriff's Department had an outstanding arrest warrant for the man for failing to appear in court on a charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol. He was turned over to the Sheriff's Department.

Two handguns and ammunition, a nickel-plated 9mm semi-automatic and a stainless steel .22 cal. semi-automatic were reported stolen on May 26 from a home in the 7 Court of Hillside.

A .38 cal. handgun was reported stolen about 6:40 p.m., May 25 from a vehicle parked at the Greenway Shopping Center.

Officer Tom Kemp arrested a 22-year-old non-resident male and a 13-year-old Greenbelt boy about 11:15 a.m., May 22 for shoplifting at the Dart Home store at Greenway Center. Charged with theft, the man was held on $2500 bond and the juvenile was released to a parent pending court action.

A gray 1985 Cadillac El Dorado, D.C. license number 930-013, which had been left for service, was stolen May 7 from the parking lot of Capitol Cadillac on Capitol Drive.

A 1987 Toyota pickup truck, reported stolen on May 27 from the 9100 block of Edmonston Rd. was found later that day in southern Prince Georges County partially stripped and stuck in the mud.

On May 22 two tires were stolen from a car parked on the lot at Beltway Plaza Mall. The car was left resting on a cinder block.

Police Chief Announces Promotion, New Hirings

Chief of Police James R. Craze this week announced a promotion and the addition of two new officers. Promoted, effective May 24 to the rank of sergeant, was James D. Love of the department's K-9 unit. The two new officers, who joined the force on May 10, are Carl H. Schinner III of Ashton, Md. and Thomas W. Moreland of Suitland. They are receiving training at the Prince Georges County Police Academy at Forestville, Md.

Dr. Ray Vidal

What can be done about tooth erosion?

Erosion is the gradual wearing away of tooth enamel at the gumline. It appears as a wedge or cup-shaped area with a smooth hard surface. The usual cause is incorrect brushing with a hard toothbrush although excessive consumption of citrus fruits or highly acid glandular secretions are additional factors.

This area very rarely decays but can be quite sensitive due to the thinning of the tooth at a point close to the nerve. In addition, accumulation of food debris in this area can cause gum recession along with increased sensitivity.

Until recently there was no successful treatment for this condition due to closeness to the nerve. However, there is now a "bonding" material which can adhere to the eroded surface without mechanically altering the tooth, thus avoiding potential nerve damage.

Greenbelt Seniors Softball

by Jerry Conway

The Greenbelt Senior Citizens slow pitch softball team challenged the Maryland State Softball Champions, the Dundalk Seniors of Baltimore County in a double header on Friday, May 29. At the end of five innings of the first game Greenbelt Seniors led by 8-0, and in the next two innings the composition of the Greenbelt team weakened and surrendered to a loss of 10-8.

In the second game, which only lasted four innings, the Greenbelt Seniors won by a score of 6-5. This competing team is our best challenge in the competition for the Maryland State Championship of 1987.

The Greenbelt Seniors played both games with 11 players while the Baltimore Dundalk team had 24 players. They used their reserve energy and efficiency to challenge our team. We feel we gained knowledge from this experience.

The Baltimore Dundalk team treated us to lunch and beverages after the games and complimented our team attitude and performance.

We are scheduled to play Baltimore Dundalk on Braden Field on June 5 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Greenbelt Seniors will attempt to provide hospitality services on that day, and we hope to earn a victory for Greenbelt for the 50th anniversary.
